About the Workshop

It's not enough to train the workforce; you also have to train the trainer.

Although, society does play an important role in moulding mindsets of people and of course the students/trainees, the educational institutions and home environment are now being looked at, as potential instruments of positive change that can save the future generations from abyss of depravity and gross inhumanity. School and home, both, have the advantage of dealing with innocent, receptive and credulous young people - who like wet clay can easily be moulded. Our challenge as educators lies in not simply giving information to our students but teaching them how to use it. Education that fosters creativity, promotes critical thinking and develops communication skills is the need of the hour.

The training (the ways and modes of design & development of curriculum and delivery of knowledge/education) is changing fast in the era of privatisation, globalisation and industrialisation. The age of IT and use of ICT in teaching and learning makes training for trainers (teacher educators) crucial in view of the New methodologies, New discoveries and about the way adults learn, changing expectations from students/trainees—and from your institutions. Training the trainer workshops give you the practical platform skills and confidence you need to succeed. “To improve is to change, to be perfect is to change often.” In this workshop all these issues will be addressed by learned speakers. This workshop aims to meet the changing needs of teacher educators and to incorporate the latest developments in education. This training for trainers workshop will show you how to become a facilitator of learning, not just a presenter. “If a child can't learn the way we teach, maybe we should teach the way they learn.” You'll build confidence, engage your audience from the beginning and leave your trainees praising your training abilities.
