The access to digital information is an event marked by the connectivity and technology and the relation of both with the user. This factor will determine the success or failure of the information professionals. Information access and use can only flourish in a society that appreciates the need for it and where government recognizes that information is the key to national growth and prosperity. Information seekers and users may not know about the resources available. The role of libraries have not always been made clear to information seekers. The explosion of information is obviously a challenge to libraries. Recognizing its importance, information is sought in an increasing number of situations by an increasing number of people. This has increased the volume of available information. The advancement of knowledge is made possible by researchers and scholars in all fields. Coupled with this is the fusion and fragmentation of disciplines and knowledge. As these break down into smaller segments, the scholarly literature becomes more specialized. In addition, there are thousands of other information packages, e.g., journals, magazines, and newspapers, being turned out by an ever-expanding publishing industry. The electronic media also produce vast volumes of information.
